

THE GREAT UFO RECALL
Or
Wouldn't You Really Rather Drive a Buick

Ever since I was a young child I was intrigued by UFO's. At one point in my young life I was so absorbed by objects that I forsook everything else in order to study them. I read all sorts of books by many authors. I went to the local news stand each month to get the latest issue of any UFO magazine that was existed. And yes, I even got my wish and saw one of them.

Over the years I watched the newspapers, the video media and I listened to the radio for any report that might come to bolster yet further my belief in astronauts from other worlds. From time to time my young curiosity was satisfied through these mediums. Although the government and other debunkers tried to convince me of mass hysteria, sightings of the plant Venus and other atmospheric phenomena I wasn't buying what they were saying. Too many people were seeing these things. The observers weren't rednecks loaded with a bit too much white lightning or hippies dropping out on LSD. People like police officers, military personnel, scientists and other credible people were giving their accounts of strange objects in the sky.

The origin of these objects and their occupants had been questioned for many years. During the infancy of the modern UFO societal interest the common consensus was that they were visitors from planets in our solar system. I remember reading a story as a young boy where the man who was contacted by an UFOonauts was told that the visitors came from Venus. As our science advanced and we launched probes into our solar system we discovered that the planets of your system could not support life. Of course, as a result of these discoveries, the entities that ride around in these craft started to change their minds where it came to their origins. They moved their homes to star systems far enough away that we can neither verify or deny their claims, seeing that the distance is so great.

The thing that has always amazed me though is all of the reports of crashes of these craft. One can do research on the internet and find that many such craft have been brought down to earth. Here is a list of some of the possible crashes of UFO's:

1941 outside of Cape Girardeau, Missouri
1947 near Roswell, New Mexico
1948 near Aztec, New Mexico
1950 near Copenhagen, Denmark
1957 near Ubatuba Brazil
1959 near Gdynia, Poland
1967 near Shag Harbor, Nova Scotia
1969 Sverdlovsky, USSR

1974 Shot down over Pacific Ocean between San Diego and Hawaii by American destroyer.
1974 Chihuahuan Desert, Mexico – Mid-air collision with commercial plane
1977 South Australia / West Australia border.
1989 Dalnegorsk, Siberia Russia
1996 Varginha, Brazil
1998 Paihuano, Valle de Elqui', Chile
2005 Nepal China border.

The crashes above are some of the more credible crashes. If you talk to serious UFO investigators they'll most likely know about those crashes. The thing is that there are a myriad of other possible crashes of UFO's over the years. Here is a short list:

12/22/09 near Chicago, Illinois	12/09/1965 Crash in Kecksburg, PA

7/7/1948 Mexico (South of Laredo)	7/10/1973 N.W. Arizona
Mid-1950's Birmingham, Alabama	05/1974 Chili, New Mexico
9/10/1950 Albuquerque, New Mexico	5/12/1976 Australian Desert
1952 Spitzbergen, Norway	6/22/1977 N.W. Arizona
2/14/1952 Ely, Nevada	4/5/1977 S.W. Ohio
4/18/1953 S.W. Arizona	8/17/1977 Tabasco, New Mexico

5/20/1953 Kingman, Arizona	05/1978 Bolivia
6/19/1953 Laredo, Texas	11/1988 Afghanistan
7/10/1953 Johannesburg South Africa	5/1989 South Africa
10/13/1953 Dutton, Montana	11/24/1991 a remote area of Southaven Park in Shirley, NY.
5/5/1955 Brighton, England	4/15/1992 Buffalo, New York
7/18/1957 Carlsbad, New Mexico	6/23/1996 Pinedale, Arizona
1958 Utah Desert	3/15/1997 WEGORZEWO, Suwalki Providence, Poland
03/1960 New Paltz, New York	4/15/1999 Alien Ship beaches itself in Guam, Uranas Reef.
06/12/1962 Holloman AFB, New Mexico

11/10/1964 Ft. Riley, Kansas

The thing about all of this is that if one does an exhaustive study, there are many other supposed crashes other those mentioned in both of the above tables. One website lists a number of alleged crashes which might have happened in the former Soviet Union and are just now coming to light.

THE SUPPOSED INTELLIGENCES?

In UFO folklore there are several different creatures that supposedly inhabit what we commonly call UFO's. Each form of creature claims to come from a specific part of our galaxy and some claim to be on specific missions. So where do they come from?

GREYS:
	The Greys; who also go by the names, “The Visitors,” and “The Reticulians,” are rather small in stature. They range in height from 3.5 to 6 feet and weigh an estimated 65 to 90 pounds. Their skin is grey in color and is rough textured. They have thin spindly bodies that seem too small to support their large heads. They have long delicate arms and webbed hands that have either three or four fingers. They sport no visual reproductive organs and it is suspected that they reproduce by cloning. As mentioned above, their heads are quite large and looked like an inverted teardrop shape. Their eyes have no pupils and are large, black and oval (almond) shaped. Orion Constellation. These are the creatures that are present during almost every abduction experience. There is a subset of smaller grays that are said to come from a star system near the shoulder of Orion; called Bellatrix.

THE NORDICS:

The Nordics, also referred to as “Swedes,” share many similarities with Human Beings; especially those living in Scandinavia, meaning that they are blonde with blue eyes. They range from 5 to 6.5 feet in height and are estimated to range from 120 to 240 pounds in weight. They are taller than the average human and seem to have greater muscular mass than humans. Their eyes are human like and their skin is pale white. They come in both male and female versions but more males are observed than females. They communicate via telepathy. They claim to come from the Pleiades star cluster. There are other humanlike visitors that claim to hail from Sirius, but little is known about them. The “Widows Peak” aliens may fall into this category.

REPTILIANS OR REPTOIDS:

These beings are described as being 6 to 8 feet tall and are bipedal. They have green, scaly, reptilian type of skin. Their eyes are usually yellow or gold in color and they possess a vertical pupil, much like that of a feline. They are sometimes linked to myths about Sumer, the Dogons, Nibiru and other supposed ancient astronaut fables. They are viewed as being negative, hostile and dangerous disposition since they think of humans as a totally inferior race. It is not known how they reproduce. The Reptilians claim to come from the Draco system and are often referred to as Draconians. Interestingly enough, Draco is the Latin word for “Dragon.” Sort of rings of the Book of Revelation, found in the Bible.

INSECTOIDS:

	Also known as the “Praying Mantis Race,” they take on the characteristics of the earthly insect. They have long, narrow faces with long narrow eyes which are long and slanted upward and outward in an almost V position. They have thin, long torso’s; long, thin arms which are usually crooked.; a sharp bend at midjoint with the hand and fingers growing almost erratically onward from the wrists. The legs are bent at almost right angles, creating a crouched pose. Both males and females have been reported. They claim to come from Cassiopeia.
MEN IN BLACK:
No Picture Available	It is not known where these entities come from. They appear to be human like. They wear completely black suits and hats. They have a pallid skin color and Asian appearing eyes. They drive around in old fashioned, well-kept black Cadillac’s and exhibit odd behavior. MIB’s often hassle people who report UFO sightings; sometimes threatening them with prison or death. Some report that these men smell of ozone or sulfur. They talk in an odd metallic way, and might be some kind of robot or android.

COMMONALITIES:

The above descriptions are but a cursory introduction to the beings that have visited humankind, usually in an abduction sort of scenario. Interesting too is that most of the types claim to come from the same area of out night sky; namely the Orion area. At least two of the types have been reported to take on an odor of sulfur (brimstone); an element that in Biblical terms always is associated with hell or God’s judgment of an unrighteous people. Remember fire and brimstone falling on Sodom and Gomorrah?

And finally, we see that they all have the ability (if their stories are true; I think not) to travel many light years to our tiny little planet. Or do they? Let’s examine something that has puzzled me; that being why so many crashes?

WHY SO MANY CRASHES?

By examining the charts at the beginning of this article, we can see that there has been purported, quite a few crashes of extraterrestrial craft here on our cozy little world. And to boot, I didn't even list all of the crashes that I found listed at various sources on the Internet.

But let's look at the entities that we're dealing with. If their message were true, and they've traveled here through the vast expanse of space/time then they would have to be much more advanced than we are. This is the claim that they've been making all through the years both through abductees that they've given messages to, and through those who supposedly channel the messages of these entities. If these aliens are so advanced then surely, they've overcome so many problems that we haven't even dreamed about. They would have had to conquer traveling at faster than light speed. They would have had to learn to warp space so that they could get places faster. They would have the knowledge of every worm hole in and around our part of the galaxy. They would have had to invent force fields and weapons that our military would die to have. Why then, do they have such a hard time staying aloft in Earth's atmosphere?

Several theories have been postulated concerning the reasons for UFO crashes on our planet. Listed below are just a few which we will expand on:

- 1. Brought down by natural forces in our atmosphere: lightning, wind sheer or other things of like manner.*
- 2. Brought down by microwave, radar or other unseen human interference.*
- 3. Brought down by munitions fire from earthly sources.*
- 4. Brought down by other extraterrestrial powers – wars or malevolence by other worldly beings.*
- 5. Faulty construction of craft or just plain accidents.*

Now there could be other factors that bring down these craft, but I believe that I've listed some of what would be the most common scenarios. Now, let's look at the possibilities for each.

Natural Forces in Atmosphere:

We examine this factor because there have been instances where earth made craft have been brought down to earth in a crash because of bad weather. A lightning strike on a commercial jet liner, should it happen in a sensitive place can cause a plane crash. There are documented cases of this being true. That is why commercial pilots, pilots of small planes and most military craft will steer a course around a thunder storm. They know that flying through such inclement weather is a serious hazard.

But what about these supposed extraterrestrial craft. If they do come from other worlds then they must be built to withstand the rigor of flying through many more challenging situations. They would have to dodge heavenly bodies and space debris. Because such debris exist in space, they would have to be able to make hairpin turns in a fraction of a second and survive the inertia of such a move. The tiniest piece of space dust would enter, exit and destroy the ship before anyone knew what happened. With all of that planning and sophisticated equipment, why would they find it so hard to maneuver through our atmosphere? So I really rule out such a scenario, seeing that they are so advanced and such.

Microwave, Radar or Other Unseen Human Interference:

My same argument can be used for this category. If these beings are so advanced then the use of any sort of sound or wavelength weapon would be akin to a pirate firing a blunderbuss at a modern American aircraft carrier. Such an event wouldn't even cause a dent to the target. And if there were such beings, and they were so advanced, wouldn't they have studied human defenses and wouldn't they have developed countermeasures before they ever considered coming into harm's way? So again, I rule out this scenario too.

Brought Down by Munitions Fire:

At the time of the Roswell event, the most sophisticated device that the military had was the proximity fuse. Mounted on a missile (which were not guided during that era) even a lucky shot would probably not result in any loss of integrity of one of the craft. Remember too that if these things were really interstellar or intergalactic then the makers of such vehicles would probably have force-field capabilities. One must also remember the Great Washington Flap of 1952. For two weeks in a row UFO's were seen over our nation's capital. Note that every time jets were scrambled to intercept these objects, the objects would just blink out. When the fighters returned to base the lights reappeared. So, since they're able to disappear and return with such rapidity it is doubtful that any munitions could affect them.

Causalities of A Battle Between Alien Races:

Some have postulated the theory that there is enmity between some of the races of aliens that are supposedly visiting our planet. Speculation has been advanced that perhaps the reason why some of these UFO's are crashing is that they are shot from the sky by other alien ships. Having done extensive study and much reading this author has come to the conclusion that there are no hostilities between the different races represented in the UFO realm. As a matter of fact, some abductees have reported that while they have the sensation of being in an alien ship, they have recognized individuals from each type of alien subset in the room at the same time. So, it seems that they're all working together in harmony.

Faulty Construction of Craft or Just Plain Accidental Events:

It seems to me that an advanced society, like we're led to believe these creatures are, would have many safeguards built into their technology. I mean, we're not talking about General Motors or Ford, both of which seem to be recalling their cars at least three or four times a day. I mean, wouldn't the superior intellect that these beings supposedly have cause them to have faultless interstellar devices? Wouldn't the manufacturers of such vehicles offer aft to stern protection for 1000 light years or 10^{60} miles, whichever comes first? And one has to wonder why they don't have "planet side assistance," or "free towing to the nearest mother ship?" And I can only imagine what their insurance rates are. "Well sir, can you tell me how far you drive to and from work each day; and have you gotten any tickets for exceeding warp ten in a warp ten zone?" Sorry that I got carried away; but I saw good subject matter for comedy:)

WHAT'S THE REAL STORY?

The real story is that these craft and their occupants do not in fact come from other worlds. They are in fact inter-dimensional. This conclusion is reached by looking at some simple facts. First, these vehicles can travel at thousands of miles per hour and make right angle turns at those speeds. Such maneuvers would turn anyone made of matter into some sort of soup on the side of the craft. UFO's have been observed materializing and dematerializing into solid ground. In most cases where these objects depart, they tend to just disappear. These things can't be done if they have mass.

Secondly, when one studies the messages that are given to abductees by these beings; and also, the messages being channeled by these beings through occult mediums; one can only see that the messages hold an anti-Christ theme to them. These entities don't attack any other religion but they go out of their way to discredit the Lord God of Israel and His Son, Yeshua Ha Mashiach. It makes no sense to me, why beings who claim to be from other worlds in the galaxy would travel all this way to bring us the New Age philosophy that spews just fine all on its own from a vast array of information media already established on earth.

What's the Theme Behind the Crashes?

We should probably start out by stating again what they are not. Given that these entities all go out of their way to show us that they're much more highly advanced than human beings are; we can easily come to the conclusion that they're not from other worlds. I can't see the validity of five or six different civilizations all building craft that can't maneuver within a fairly simple and thin atmosphere and can't survive the meteorological conditions; or the weapons of the inhabitants of our world with its primitive weaponry.

My belief is that the reasons for the crashes that have occurred take on a much more insidious facade. Having thought about tactics, I wondered what I would do if I wanted a large group of people to believe something that to the normal person seems unbelievable. I then think about what I would do if I wanted perpetuate a lie, or perhaps a smokescreen while I was finalizing my real plan. I WOULD PLANT FALSE EVIDENCE!

Here's a little scenario that might help to explain what I'm trying to say. Let's say that I was on a council of evil entities; let's call them demonic hordes or fallen angels. Now, I want to set into motion a plan to deceive the world. I know that my time is short and I know that the outcome is already determined through a divine edict laid down since the beginning of time. I know that I can't win the war, but I can take with me as many souls as I can deceive to be with me in eternal damnation. They would sort of be my trophies; heads hanging on my wall to make me feel better about my attempt at a successful rebellion.

Now I know that the society that I'm trying to deceive is pretty intellectual. They don't believe in ghosts and goblins anymore. I've been successful in many ways at deceiving these people though. I've convinced them that their creator really doesn't exist. I've convinced them that instead of being created by a loving God, they instead were the product of random chance and that their only hope is in their own dreams and aspirations. Over the years, I've managed to convince them through guile and by playing toward their own vanity that they are not alone in the universe. After all, they see all the stars; trillions of them and I plant the notion that they are not alone in the universe. Then I start to show signs and wonders in the sky in the form of what they term UFO's, named aptly so by these people because they can't comprehend what I've shown them.

I commission those beings who have fallen with me. I tell them to manifest in many different ways; by manner of ghosts, extraterrestrials and other paranormal things. I find foolish people on this planet who believe my lie so strongly that I can speak to them and convince them that I am the answer to all of their questions; and the lie starts to perpetuate like a fire to dry kindling. I'm on my way to taking over this planet and it seems quite easy.

But aside from their creator who has been battling me, there stands one thing in my way. You see, when I finally became successful at destroying their faith, they started to demand hard evidence, not just about their creator, but for just about everything. They need physical proof to believe in anything. So now I have to put some hard evidence to this UFO thing that I've created. I start by having my evil emissaries construct craft out of physical materials. Because of our supernatural powers we're able to have these craft appear and disappear at will; it's not that hard a chore. Then we abduct some of these people who live on this planet. Because we're angels we have a pretty high degree of technology; much higher than man will ever achieve. We've known about genetic manipulation forever and some of us were even successful with it during the days of Noah, when we tried to disrupt the pure bloodline that God had established at the beginning of Earth when he promised the progenitor of these earthly beings that his offspring would someday produce a deliverer that would make things right between them and their creator.

So, with our genetic prowess we create something that mankind comes to refer to as grey aliens. They're basically our drones and do all of the dirty work. Because we created them, they have no souls, but that makes it easier for our side because they are merely shells that can host the spirits of the Nephilim that died before the creator destroyed the world with a great flood. The Greys are actually a very effective tool. They look humanoid and that's just enough to fool the inhabitants. of this planet.

But something still keeps these humans from believing the lie totally. They still demand proof; something substantial that they can hold in their hands and see with their own eyes so that they can fully believe. So, one day we decide to give them that proof. We take some of the craft that we have developed; two on this particular day; and we have them crash outside a community known as Roswell, New Mexico, in what the inhabitants call The United States. This society is in a rapid spiral toward destruction anyway. Elements that have been under control of my minions for years are causing dissension among the populace and within a few years they'll deny the creator and lead this nation into a totally godless society. We cause one of the crafts to totally destroy upon impact with the death of our little grey creations. The other craft crashes, mostly intact, killing some of the grey creatures, but some remain alive. The debris of both craft is collected as are the aliens. The demonic entities that inhabit the shell of the living greys entertain the human military captors that now hold them. They tell these humans all sorts of lies about civilizations all over the galaxy. They explain how they want to help mankind to advance both technologically and spiritually.

Well, you get the picture I'm sure. My contention is that the crashes that happened in New Mexico back in the 1940's and all over the world since then are merely planted evidence, given to mankind to mask what is really going on. They caused a great belief in the general populace, enforcing an already planted belief that we are not alone in the universe.

Back in the 1990's several events happened in the political spectrum here in the United States. We were governed by a president (Bill Clinton) who should probably have gone into used car or snake oil sales. Among his many undesirable attributes was his skill at being a habitual liar. That is probably the greatest success of his presidency; his ability to talk his way out of just about anything he was caught doing. Actually, if one could admire a person's ability to lie, they could elevate Clinton to some sort of celebrity status.

One of problems with his administration is that there were some, like Ron Brown and Vince Foster who through whatever purpose threatened to expose Clinton for what he was. Both of these men died after making the threats and they joined several others who were dispatched from this life because they opposed the Clintons. Vince Foster was a unique case though. You see, when they murdered Mr. Foster, they made several mistakes. The most important one is that the supposed suicide weapon was in Foster's right hand. Why is that odd? Foster was left handed! From that and other things that were observed at the crime scene it was clear that Mr. Foster was murdered, and PLANTED EVIDENCE was left at the crime scene.

You see, liars, thieves and all those who do malicious deeds always tend to show their cards in one way or another. With the murder of Mr. Foster, the main focus was the gun in the wrong hand. In the case of the UFO crashes it's the fact that on one hand we're spoon fed the notion that beings are coming from other worlds who are light years more advanced than we are, and their craft are made with technology that transcends our wildest imagination; yet they can't even manage to fly in our atmosphere without crashing. Let's get real about this. Anyone with any sense of discernment can see that crashes of UFO's aren't real crashes; they're planted false evidence to perpetuate the lie that UFO's come from other worlds and that their inhabitants are here to save us from ourselves. And when the subject ever comes up think on this; can you trust beings to save you who can't even save themselves?

The answer to that question is a resounding NO! I choose to trust in the Lord God of Israel, Maker of Heaven and earth.

Some trust in chariots, and some in horses: but we will remember the name of the LORD our God. They are brought down and fallen: but we are risen, and stand upright. Psalm 20:7-8

It's an interesting term that the Psalmist uses: "they are brought down and fallen."

The postulation that the UFO-nauts are actually entities from other worlds is preposterous. Anyone who has done any serious study and comparison between these beings and the demons and fallen angels of old can quite quickly figure out that all of the above parties are one and the same. The UFO phenomena is nothing more than an attempt by those angels to infiltrate our society and to start a new race of Nephilim which want nothing more than to try and destroy mankind all over again. Time is short and Satan knows that to be a fact. He'll do anything he can to deceive humankind so that he can achieve his purpose. If you doubt this to be true then I ask you to do your own study; and if you do it honestly, you'll come to the same conclusions.
