

CHEMTRAIL FLU 2015

I know that many people have given up watching television, and I applaud you. My wife and I watch it mainly to watch documentaries and other such things. I really hate commercials and thank Yahweh every time that one comes on to disrupt my viewing because the remote has a mute button and I've worn its surface off using it. There is one that has been airing for quite a few years. It is an ad for some trust fund that has been set up for people exposed to asbestos and who have developed mesothelioma, a lung cancer associated with the inhalation of asbestos. Personally, I think that this trust fund is wonderful. I only wish that my grandfather, who died of emphysema, which is often associated asbestosis, or the beginnings of mesothelioma could be alive to take advantage of this trust fund, and/or my two uncles and my own father who were exposed many times to asbestos. Our family often misses out on such things, too bad.

Years ago, I started to notice that the contrails that we saw as kids had somehow changed. Contrails often disappear quickly behind the airplane that is causing them, they never linger. However, these new trails were lingering for hours and then were spreading out to cause their own clouds and/or haze. I looked this up on the internet, going to conspiracy websites and found that they called this new thing "chemtrails." It's a combination word meaning chemical trails. I read that there were a variety of theories as to what chemtrails were. Some said that it was to increase global warming; other said that it was to protect us from increasing rays of the sun; and still others said that the government was using it for weather control, using the chemtrail clouds to bounce HAARP signals off of to create abnormal weather. To me, all of these things seemed plausible, and aside from the theory of them being there to protect us from sun rays, I see no need to dismiss the others as a secondary use of these chemtrails.

In 2007 I met my first wife. She was a wonderful woman from Mexico whose maiden name was Maria de Lourdes Peredo Camarena. She was a confirmed Born-Again Believer in Yeshua and she loved the Messianic movement, especially since she did have Jewish heritage. We quickly fell in love and decided to be married, all of this done over the internet and through phone calls where we'd talk sometimes well into the early morning hours. In April of 2008 I hopped on Mexican airline and flew to Mexico City to see her personally and to ask for her father for her hand in marriage. One strange thing happened while flying down to Mexico. Now bear in mind that the airlines will tell you that they do not take in exterior air to fill the cabin, and they'll swear that they recycle the air in the cabin. Well, when you think about it, the air that is inhaled and exhaled by 200+ people in the cabin of the airplane would soon become toxic with carbon dioxide and everyone would suffocate, especially during long flights, like the one from Sacramento to Mexico City. The only place to get clean air is by venting air in from outside and using by using compressors to equal an adequate cabin pressure.

Okay, with that in mind, when the sun came back up the following morning and we were still in flight I noticed that we were flying through what was obviously the exhaust from other airlines. You can see them all the time if you gaze out of the window, and with chemtrails they seem to go on for miles and miles as you view them. The thing was, that our plane was flying through them and I could see the wings cutting through these trails. I want to categorically state that aside from a bout with pneumonia back in the 1980's I have never had lung problems. As a teen I smoked a pack of cigarettes daily for about four years and then I quit cold turkey. So, I'm pretty sure that my lungs are clear and x-rays have shown that time and time again.

So, I got to Guadalajara and had to go through customs before boarded the plane to continue on to Mexico City. While standing in line to have my passport stamped, I noticed that I didn't feel well. I started to cough and hack. I got back on the plane and arrived in Mexico City about half past 8AM that next morning. My soon to be fiancé greeted me and soon we were on the way back to her neighborhood in Mexico City. If you have lung problems, stay out of Mexico City. The air can be so thick with particular matter that you can see the smog just looking across the street. This did not help my coughing at all. I coughed so much that I was sure that Lourdes' dad and brother would think that I had tuberculosis and would deny permission to marry her. This was a full-blown case of bronchitis, something that I never had before. We did travel out of Mexico City during my two weeks of visiting and even in clean air my coughing didn't stop or even let up. I attributed my cough as picking up some sort of flu and just hoped that it would get better sometime during my trip. It continued the whole time I was there. I went to a pharmacy and picked up an albuterol inhaler hoping that it would help. It did help a little, but not like I hoped it would have worked. After two weeks I returned to the California. Two weeks after arriving home I went to my doctor who told me that I had bronchitis. He gave me an inhaler prescription and sent me home telling me that it would take time to get better. Two months later I finally noticed that it was resolving, thankful that I didn't have TB or some sort of exotic disease. It was then that I remembered the airplane flying through the chemtrails.

When I was going through this, I called my friend Jim Wilhelmsen to tell him about the bronchitis and other things like my time down in Mexico. After I finished, Jim was silent on the phone for a short period and then he told me a story. He said that a few years earlier, when he was driving his Harley down the highway outside of Roswell, New Mexico, he noticed that a chemtrail that he had been observing for a while had started to settle on the ground. He described it as a whole bunch of spider web material falling down all over the place. He also said that he breathed some of the stuff in through his mouth. It was not long after that time that Jim came down with a hacking cough that he had for a very long time and he said that from time to time it would flare up again. This just confirmed to me further that chemtrails are some sort of biological agent that makes people sick.

Well, time marched on and Lourdes developed a brain abscess brought on by a dentist who ignored her special heart surgery that she had as a kid that sort of rerouted the cardiac vessels around her heart and made her more vulnerable to diseases. She went to be with Yeshua in December of 2010. Close to a year later I met my current wife, again online, and we clicked right away and fell in love. We were married in June of 2012 and I relocated to Oregon where she lived. About six months into our marriage I got bronchitis again. We were watching our grandkids and our granddaughter had a lower respiratory infection. You know how kids are. They don't know to turn to cough and my little princess coughed right into my face. Within a few days the bronchitis started. I went to the doctor and got another inhaler and two months or so later my symptoms started to abate. Around the beginning of 2014 the kids came to visit again. My same granddaughter became scared during the night and crawled in next to my wife on the other side of the bed. She was coughing and I could hear the congestion in her chest. When morning came, she came over to me and guess what, she coughed into my face. Now I love my granddaughter and I don't blame her for doing such things. Kids are ignorant about sickness and how it is spread. Immediately I knew that this would have bad ramifications. Sure enough, with a weeks' time I got bronchitis again, but not as severe as before, which I was thankful for. And for another time, about three weeks ago my little princess was visiting and coughed again and I noticed that she had chest congestion. She has weak lungs and gets infections easily. Well, you guessed it, I got bronchitis again, pretty bad this time. I went to the doctor yesterday after waiting for two weeks to see if it would resolve. I was diagnosed with bronchitis and given steroids and an inhaler. The steroids have knocked it down quite well and today is a vast improvement.

When I get online and read an article about Chemtrail Flu, I have to agree with the assertions of the person writing the article. The article can be found here. If you ever get a chance to visit the Georgia Guidestone's I recommend you look at their plans for making a better world. Their very first plan is to reduce the population of the world to 1/2 billion people. Since there are about 7.5 billion people in the world at the time of this writing, that means that they want to get rid of 7 billion people. There are many speculations as to what the constituents of chemtrails are. The problem is that this phenomenon is not taken seriously by the scientific community so it is not studied as to provide an adequate assessment of what is being sprayed in the skies and why these compounds are being sprayed. If you look at the life of most scientists, they are paid via government grants. Putting two plus two together you can guess that if they were to start investigating a government sponsored purposeful airborne infection conspiracy they would not be employed very long and they would be blackballed in their working community. It is easier to mock the event as a conspiracy nut theory than to perform real science; frankly, it pays better. With that in mind, I produce for you some grassroots studies into the phenomenon that give some pretty good documentation about chemtrails:

<http://globalskywatch.com/stories/my-chemtrail-story/chemtrail-information/chemtrail-types.html#.VKwnpCvF98E> : gives personal observations and remedies.

<http://www.rense.com/general12/alum.htm> : Rense has an interesting article about aluminum in chemtrails and their effects

<http://www.libertyforlife.com/military-war/chemtrails.htm> : A lot of information with pictures and everything.

<http://panacea-bocaf.org/chemtrails.htm> : Very interesting site with a lot of links and valuable information.

The thing with chemtrail research like I said above is that there are three types of people that talk about it. There are the debunkers who use tidbits of information to say that there are no such things as chemtrails, or, they will say that the spraying doesn't constitute a problem because the toxins being released are well below what the "government" says are detrimental to human health. Then there are the people who flat-out deny that the government is doing anything wrong and that there are no such things as chemtrails. Then you have the grassroots people who have to do the scientific study themselves because they want to prove that there is a problem that needs to be addressed and/or stopped immediately. I fall into the third category, not only because of what I've read, but because of the fact that I've inhaled something, as have others that have made us sick, or have made us more susceptible to sickness. Another question I pose; is this why the flu vaccine has made me get the flu when I've received it? There are some who propose that the purpose of chemtrails is just that, to cause the flu vaccine to do the opposite than protect you from the flu, but give it to you. I can see this as this being a valid assertion based on my own health. Some would argue that the grassroots people can't do correct scientific theory because they aren't scientists. I disagree. True testimony is based on objective information from people who have had experience and can attribute it to the same object of focus. For instance, if out of 100 brick masons, 60 percent of them can testify that they have dropped cement blocks on a foot and broken that foot it can be called true that dropping a cement block on one's foot can cause a bone breakage, especially if it was 60 out of the total of 100 that have had the experience and the other 40 have never dropped a block on their foot. Furthermore, the assertion can be made that wearing steel toed shoes can keep toes from being broken, and everyone who wore steel toed shoes and dropped a concrete block on their foot never broke a toe, that would be a valid rule that if you wear such shoes you can almost always prevent toe breakage in such instances. Well, if people who work outside within a certain window of chemtrail sprays come down with specific illnesses then it can be rightly said that the chemtrails caused the illnesses. Throw into the mix that since they first had their illness, all of them get sicker easier than they ever did before their exposure to chemtrails and it establishes a pattern. Science is built on patterns.

Another point can be made regarding my grandchildren. The older boy likes to stay inside and play video games, for the most part. The two younger siblings are the kids that like to go outside and play. Is it a coincidence that the two younger ones are the ones that have asthma problems? Again, I don't think so. We have a daughter and grandchildren that live north of where we live here in Oregon. Some of their kids are asthmatic as is our daughter. Interesting to note that when we visited Israel, we didn't note any chemtrails. Also, take into account that our daughter, her husband and their kids have no asthma and allergy problems. Israel is one of the places where they do not spray chemtrails. I did a little research and learned that those who have moved out of the States to third world nations and also to places like Israel note that they don't see chemtrails at all. The following are just a couple of testimonies I found on a bulletin board thread:

Lived in US, saw chemtrails-o-plenty, moved to Israel, haven't seen a one Recently moved to Costa Rica from the States. Also, haven't seen ONE since May. Not one.

So why did I bring Israel into the equation? The answer is simple. Our other daughter, who lives in Israel with her husband and five children have clear lungs and nobody there has asthma. Why could this be? Well, one thing could be that Orthodox Jewish Law requires that foods be free from contaminants such as pesticides and other airborne items. If you ever visit Israel, you'll notice that their vegetables taste much better than they do here in the states, much like they did here in America when I was growing up back in the 60's and 70's. Even their Coca Cola tastes better because they still use sugar as a sweetener. Very few items in Israel contain high fructose corn syrup.

On a side note I was not surprised that when I searched the bulletin boards and such that I found that some people were ignorantly ascribing the spraying of chemtrails to the “Great Zionist Conspiracy to Take Over the World.” I’m Jewish by ancestry and I know a lot of Jews and none of them are rich by any means; most of us scrimp and save like everyone else. If there is a conspiracy, I’ve never seen it nor heard of it within Jewish circles, and if there was, I would not have to go to visit the food closet this week to get some basic staples. I’d have a great job if there was such a conspiracy and I would want for nothing. If there was such a conspiracy and Jews were involved then they would have already taken over the world because we’re pretty adept at getting things done in very little time. We’ve been dispersed throughout the nations for two thousand years and during that time there has never been a Jewish takeover of the world. No, the supposed Jewish World Takeover is just another excuse used by those who hate Jews to promote anti-Jewish hate amongst people who are ignorant and know no better. Isn’t it interesting too that when people try to prove that chemtrails are real they are ridiculed as fanatics and cranks, but if one person says that chemtrails are a Jewish conspiracy it takes off like wildfire? How can something that doesn’t exist be the fault of the Jews; it doesn’t exist, right?

For those people that think that chemtrails don’t exist I’ll just ask this; do you ever look up? Are you so young that you don’t remember what real contrails look like? Here is a picture to show you what Chemtrails look like so that you can recognize them when you look up:

It is very easy to research the chemtrail phenomenon. Do an honest research for yourself. You can simply Google “chemtrails” to find a litany of links that will show you everything from pictures to the constituents of chemicals and biological agents in chemtrails. You will find other sites where they will tell you about strange illnesses that people have been coming down with since they started releasing chemtrails. Of course, you’ll have to take everything with a grain of salt because like anything else you find on the internet there are valid reports and downright bizarre reports.

So, if you’re like me and you’ve never been sick before and all of a sudden you start developing respiratory problems that linger for months and return easily. If you’re the type that gets sicker when you get a flu shot or if you’re the type that takes forever to get over sicknesses that others get over in just a few days then perhaps you are like me and have chemtrail flu. There are things that supposedly make recovery better and they can be found on the websites that I listed above. However, if you’re still a skeptic and you think that the US government or any other government exists for your well-being then I leave you with a picture of the New Age and/or New World Order list of their plans. But before I do that, I want to say that if you know Yeshua as your Lord and Savior there is a good chance that you will survive the Chemtrail Flu and the plans of the New World Order. If you don’t know Yeshua as your Lord and Savior than all I can suggest is that you find out more about Him quickly. Feel free to contact me if you want to know Him or know more about Him. If you refuse, then all I can say is I’m sorry that you made the wrong choice.
