

SOME SUPPOSED “CHRISTIAN” BOOKS ARE POISON AND WITCHCRAFT

Recently, I made a new friend on Facebook. This friend is not afraid, to tell the truth about the drek that is going into and coming out of churches. This friend receives a lot of flack from people who call themselves believers, but try to rip her to shreds. Yes, Yahweh knows the heart, but some people produce bad fruit and we know what Yeshua said about trees that bear bad fruit; they become firewood at a later time when the Judgment occurs, so to speak. Needless to say, I feel it is safe to say that this new Facebook Friend shares a lot with me, my wife and our friend.

A few years ago my wife and I, along with a friend attended a church that seemed intent on making wrong judgment calls. They allowed reprobate people come into the fellowship to introduce pagan ways and they endorsed groups and books that were clearly New Age in nature. Of course, we became the villains because we addressed the issues with the pastor. The problem is that the pastor never liked being a lead (and only) pastor (he preferred to be a music pastor) and he basically allowed his wife to dictate church policy, along with other females in the church. One of the books that came into question was a book called “The Shack,” which our little group had research and found to be straight out heresy. We were sharing with some of the church members about our findings when the pastor’s wife, along with one or two of her sycophants came over to take over our conversation. When the pastor’s wife said that she read the book, and when she said that she liked the book and that it was a refreshing look at the Trinity, and when her little brood agreed with her the other people dispersed. You didn’t dare argue with the pastor’s wife. I was reminded of Elijah’s encounter with Ahab and Jezebel and how he had to flee for his life. I took that thought as coming from Yahweh, that the little course correction that the pastor’s wife had just conducted was our sign from Yahweh that the ship was sinking and that we should all three jump in a lifeboat and leave the SS Laodicea that was quickly sinking into the dark waters of the New Age.

As time winds down and we approach the end of days it has become more noticeable that a flood of books has been produced that have the appearance of being Godly, but that deny the power thereof, so to speak. Do you remember the first few pages of Genesis where Chava was deceived in the Garden of Eden? Do you remember how the Nachash deceived Chava by causing her to question what Yahweh told both she and Adam? His catchphrase was, “did God really say?” Those few words, along with other words of doubt from the Nachash promising them that they would have their eyes opened and that they would become like Yahweh. I fell for that same lie when I was young. My parents told me that drinking alcohol was bad and that it could only lead to trouble. Then I ran into a group of kids that told me that my parents were wrong and that drinking brings happiness and joy. I fell for the lie a few times and swore that I would never drink again as I was wrenching every bit of matter out of my gut into the leaves that were laying on the ground in the woods. I believed a lie and paid the price for it.

Now just think about what the Nachash told to Chava. He started out with, “Did God really say?” That was the lure that made her question Yahweh’s command against the fruit of that particular tree. Then, the Nachash started to tell Chava appealing half truths. To paraphrase what he said; “God doesn’t want you to eat the fruit because He knows that when you do, you will be just like He is and you will have the power that He has, you will become gods. The Nachash, who rebelled against Yahweh because he wanted to be like Yahweh placed a power trip on Chava to convince her through half-truths that she would be like Yahweh if she partook of the fruit.

We at the Delusion Resistance affirm the age old truth that Scripture is the authoritative and Ruach Ha Kodesh inspired Word of Yahweh. We believe that Yeshua is the Word of Yahweh and that He is Yahweh. We believe that in His Word, and by Him, the personage of the Word of Yahweh, that He confirms the Word of Yahweh and that the Word of Yahweh confirms and affirms Him. Therefore, Biblical Scripture is Yahweh’s instruction to us, and his Love Letter to us. As to the Nachash’s (Satan’s) question, “has Yahweh really said,” we answer a resounding YES, Yahweh has indeed said, and in the strongest rebuke, we demand him to leave and never come back with his lies.

You will notice in the list of characteristics of the books below, that the main theme is asking the question, “Has Yahweh really said?” You will also see that the major themes of Biblical Scripture and doctrine are disputed and refuted in these books. You will also notice that some of them say that Yahweh is fallible and that the depiction that Scripture gives us of our creator is faulty.

My first admonition would be that you just stay away from these books. These books are bad food, and you wouldn’t eat bad food just to see if it was bad food, would you? Yahweh never asked us to be a taster of poison food in his court. If you must read these books read them for facts, not fiction. Fiction always leads us down the path where we become the book and when we identify with a book that way, we tend to advocate for it and defend it. Go into these books looking for problems, not for solutions. Pray for discernment before you read any of them. You'll notice in the lists below that strong believers in Yahweh have read these book and found all many faults with them. In addition, if you do not have a strong relationship with Yeshua then don't read these books. Remember, that Biblical Scripture was given to us so that we could Yahweh's character. If you do not know scripture and the original, then it will be easy for you to accept a counterfeit.

All six of these books are often promoted as “Christian” but are “New Age” books which preach “Another Jesus”, “Another Spirit”, and “Another Gospel”.

“Conversations with God” by Neale Donald Walsch teaches:

- No Devil,
- We Face Armageddon (in ourselves) No Need for Future Armageddon (collective)
- Meditation.

There you have it, folks. I do not doubt that you and I will have friends that will tell us that they either read these books or that they just saw the Shack movie and that it was very moving and that it touched their heart. Well, we're not supposed to be ruled by the heart, but by the Ruach Ha Kodesh. I would also bet that in most cases the people that voice that sort of sentiment aren't walking strongly with Yeshua or if they know Yeshua at all. A lot of people like to play Churchianity and have absolutely no clue as to what Yahweh desires and/or requires of His people. I choose to take advice from learned and discerning people and if I do err, I err on the side of caution, and who can really go wrong by doing that.
